

10-12-1987

Monitor Newsletter October 12, 1987

Bowling Green State University

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.bgsu.edu/monitor>

Recommended Citation

Bowling Green State University, "Monitor Newsletter October 12, 1987" (1987). Monitor. 894.
<https://scholarworks.bgsu.edu/monitor/894>

This Book is brought to you for free and open access by the University Publications at ScholarWorks@BGSU. It has been accepted for inclusion in Monitor by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks@BGSU.

Monitor

Vol. XI., No. 15

Bowling Green State University

Oct. 12, 1987

Senate hears financial report from president

President Paul Olscamp reported to Faculty Senate Oct. 6 on the University's 1988-89 financial situation and told senators "there are very few options available to us" to increase the state subsidy.

"There is no possibility of lifting the ceiling on students or changing the funding formula," Olscamp said. "So the only areas we have any options under our own control are in budget reductions and fee increases. I welcome your advice."

However, the president assured the senate that the University is not in a "panic situation" and "we can continue roughly in the same way next year."

Dr. J. Christopher Dalton, vice president for planning and budgeting, explained an income analysis of the main campus educational budget through 1989 based on a six percent fee increase. "Based on our projections, the numbers suggest that we would have to cut $1.63 million from the budget to cover our mandated increases," Dalton said. "A major task for budget committees this year is going to be finding where to cut expenses."

In other business, Dr. Harold Lunde, chair of the Faculty Welfare Committee, continued a report from the previous senate meeting on faculty salary status. In surveying increases in average salaries for continuing faculty for Ohio category I universities, Lunde said the committee has found that Bowling Green has been on the bottom of the list since 1982.

Also on the agenda:

- Named to the Faculty Senate Budget Committee was Dr. Daniel Bragg, management. Named to Faculty Personnel and Conciliation were Dr. Ben Muego, political science at Firelands; Marjorie Miller, home economics; and Dr. Jack Nachbar, popular culture.

Nominations were taken for vacancies on University standing committees.

- During issues and concerns, senators discussed concerns with summer school matters. It was suggested to invite Dr. Ramona Cormier, dean of continuing education, to the next senate meeting to answer questions. However, a motion passed to refer the matter to the Senate Executive Committee for disposition.

ASC examines Firelands vote

Administrative staff at Firelands College could have their own proportional representation on Administrative Staff Council. Council members received the proposal for consideration at their Oct. 1 meeting.

Firelands has 12 administrative staff employees, but has never had a representative with voting power on the council. Dennis Horan, media specialist at Firelands, was appointed to serve as an ad hoc member for the college this year. If the proposal passes at the Nov. 5 meeting, Horan would become a voting member.

In other business, council heard from guest speaker Dr. Karl Vogt, vice president for operations. He discussed the operations area and some of its concerns including building maintenance and the 309 pay proposal issue.

Surrounded by the different marks that symbolize places people have visited, Laurel Cashin (from left), Marcia Stuermer and artist-in-residence Kathie Johnson discuss the location of one of the three dimensional objects that make up Johnson's mixed media project entitled "Room With a View" at the Fine Arts Gallery. Area residents are being invited to collaborate on project with other art education and art therapy majors.

CSC scholarships benefit

Smith's kind effort worth $1,000

The Classified Staff Council's scholarship fund is $1,000 richer thanks to the kind efforts of a classified staff member.

Laurie Smith, purchasing, didn't donate the money personally, but it was through her helping hand in working with Blockhouse, a Pennsylvania furniture manufacturer, that the donation was made in her name.

Blockhouse produces dormitory and office furniture, and the University is one of its customers. Smith, who services the Blockhouse account, was contacted in August by Blockhouse asking for a referral of a quality representative. "They said for the time and effort spent on the referrals they would put the name of my university in a random drawing for a $1,000 donation," Smith said. "I really didn't expect to hear from them."

However, Blockhouse called her recently to tell her that Bowling Green had been selected in the drawing and the money would be donated in her name. She was asked to designate a fund of her choice for the $1,000.

"I contacted the alumni office for a suggestion and said I wanted to benefit classified staff in some way since I am a classified employee," she said. "They told me about the Classified Staff Council Scholarship Fund."

"I'm really thrilled about the donation and think it's great people will be able to benefit from it. Someone from the University of Toledo called me the other day and said she wished her school had won it."

Bob Kreienkamp, chair of Classified Staff Council, said the donation came as a surprise and is the largest single contribution ever made to the fund. "We really appreciate Laurie thinking of us. The donation will be a great boost to our fund," he said.

At the annual classified staff convocation held in September, CSC awarded its first scholarships since the fund had been established. Both Carole Beard, word processing, and Anita Ybanes, wife of classified employee Raynaldo Yabanes, received $50 scholarships.

Nancy Lee, chair of CSC's scholarship committee, said the $1,000 donation will allow the council to increase the number of scholarships awarded annually. She said a scholarship fund drive is planned for next spring.

Scholars on Constitution to gather

The Bowling Green community will have the opportunity to hear and talk with some of the country's leading constitutional scholars Oct. 22-24 at the second of a unique series of three conferences observing the document's bicentennial.

The National Endowment for the Humanities awarded a $48,207 grant to the Social Philosophy and Policy Center to develop the center's project on "Economic Rights and the Constitution," which is part of the NEH's special observance for the constitution's bicentennial. The funding is the first portion of a three-year grant of $150,000 for the project.

The principal mission of the project is to encourage public awareness of the history, current status and future prospects of individual economic liberties, as they have been defined in the text of the Constitution and interpreted by the Supreme Court.

The conference, "Liberty, Property and Government: The Constitution and the Nation Grow Together," will feature nine invited scholars. They will examine the developing conflict between the Supreme Court's constitutional protection of individual property and contractual rights and the increasing desires of state and federal legislators to enact reforms and regulations to cope with the problems of industrialization and urbanization.

The first conference, held in October 1986, examined the topic of "Liberty, Property and the Foundations of the American Constitution."

"The center's project consists of two major components: three public conferences at Bowling Green during the fall semesters of 1986, 1987 and 1988, and publication of a three-volume set of scholarly essays, as well as a reader, about the Constitution and economic rights.

"The program has received national attention and that's why we would like to emphasize the participation of the University community," said Kory Tilgner, assistant project director and executive assistant to the directors of the Social Philosophy and Policy Center. "The speakers are shaking the debate of how the Constitution was written and have a direct influence on shaping the public's interpretation."

Dr. Michael Kammen, a Newton C. Farr professor of American history and culture at Cornell University, will deliver the keynote address at 7:45 p.m. Oct. 22 at Miletic Alumni Center. In 1973 he received the Pulitzer Prize in history for his book People of Paradox: An Inquiry Concerning the Origins of American Civilization.

His most recent book, A Machine That Would Go of Itself: The Constitution in American Culture, has been awarded the 1987 Francis Parkman Prize by the Society of American Historians and the Henry Adams Prize by the Society for History in the Federal Government. He also is the recipient of numerous fellowships, including being named a Constitutional Fellow by the National

Michael Kammen

Continued on page 3

UGC approves technical study degree

Members of Undergraduate Council approved a proposal for an associate degree of technical study at Firelands College at their Sept. 16 meeting.

Dr. William McGraw, dean of the college, had explained at a previous meeting that the degree had been proposed in response to needs of the work force, and to various initiatives by the State of Ohio and the Board of Regents aimed at enhancing the role of higher education in preparing the state's workforce.

A revised version of the proposal included a model schedule for the degree, additional information regarding admission, and guidance for planning of the degree program. Peter Henning, applied sciences at Firelands, said students will not be allowed admission to the program if they have already completed over 30 hours, unless they still take the hours required by the complete program.

The proposal will be sent to the Board of Trustees for approval and then to the Ohio Board of Regents.

In other business, members discussed whether the council should be examining the budgetary requirements of the programs that are presented. Dr. Eloise Clark, council chair, said the council's primary function is to assure the academic quality and merit of proposals, but it will examine budgetary implications. She said there is no one committee or group that provides general University-wide oversight for all potential problems that might arise because a new program needs University resources. However, she said there are checks and balances that prevent programs from being implemented or growing if the resources are not available.

In discussion, members noted that when a new program is presented to the Undergraduate Council, it comes after approval by departments, faculty college councils and the dean. Council must assume that the department and college have made a commitment to the program and either have the resources available or can reallocate the funds from another source. Even with this assumption, the programs brought to Council should show clear evidence that the resource question has been identified and addressed.

Council agreed a program may be presented and approved which at this stage does not require additional resources. If the program grows and in the future requires additional space, faculty, equipment, etc., then the department and college must assess whether resources can be reallocated. If such reallocation is not possible, the case must be taken to the University Budget Committee and the Faculty Senate Budget Committees to determine if reallocation between colleges or vice presidential areas can be made.

Questions were raised about subsidy allocation and whether there is anything the University can do to improve its subsidy income. It was acknowledged that the University should not move to a stance of approving programs or courses based on subsidy implications rather than on quality. Clark suggested that Dr. J. Christopher Dalton, vice president for planning and budgeting, should be invited to attend a meeting of the council to provide a thorough explanation of the subsidy formula.

Also on the agenda:

- Dr. Dawn Glanz, art, was nominated and elected as vice chair of Undergraduate Council.

- Dr. Richard Hebein, romance languages, was selected to serve a two-year term to the Committee on Academic Affairs. A one-year representative will be selected at a later date.

- Clark announced that a convocation in honor of Distinguished University Professor Dr. Arthur Neal, sociology, will be held at 3:30 p.m. Nov. 4 in Bryan Recital Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center.

Positions open

Classified Staff Council is seeking self-nominations from classified staff for two positions on the Human Relations Commission. Volunteers serve a three year term. Send nominations to CSC, P.O. Box 91, University Hall by Oct. 20.

Firelands to observe its 20th anniversary

Firelands College will celebrate its 20th anniversary with an open house from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday (Oct. 18).

"More than 25,000 students have received degrees or taken courses at Firelands since ground was broken in July 1967," said Dr. William R. McGraw, dean of the college.

In addition, 20,000 Huron-area residents have taken non-credit, lifelong learning courses, McGraw said.

Area residents, alumni, students, prospective students and friends of Firelands College are invited to visit the open house and have a piece of the "three-county" cake in honor of the counties Erie, Huron and Ottawa which the campus serves.

Demonstrations on everything from robotics and quality control to CPR and word processing will entertain the guests.

On exhibit in the art gallery will be a one-man photography and watercolors show by Joel Rudinger.

For theater lovers, a rehearsal of "Our Town" will take place at 2:45 p.m. in McBride Auditorium.

"The Creation of Magic With Chemistry" will be presented at 2:15 p.m. in the Firelands Room.

WCPZ will broadcast live from the campus during the open house and will

Firelands College will celebrate the 20th anniversary of its groundbreaking with an open house Oct. 18. The public is invited to visit the Bowling Green State University campus located in Huron.

assist in a grand drawing at 3:30 p.m. All guests who sign the guestbook are eligible to win a prize which include courtside tickets to the opening home game of the Cleveland Cavaliers, tickets for a round trip fare on the Parker Boat Line from Port Clinton to Put-In-Bay, and Front Row Theater tickets to "Donahue in Cleveland."

Members of the Firelands College Advisory Board, faculty and staff will host the event which is free and open to the public. For more information, contact the Office of Public Relations at Firelands at 433-5560, ext. 213.

Class essential to United Way's success

Since the fall semester began, graduate students taking Technology 663, have been working to organize the training of volunteers for the United Way. The annual fundraising campaign on campus began Oct. 5 and continues through Oct. 23.

"We've been meeting three to four times a week outside of class since the first Monday of school," said class member Terry Lawrence.

Area coordinators, captains and volunteers from the faculty, administrative and classified staffs are responsible for contacting every employee of the University and presenting them with a United Way donation form. The Tech 663 class helps facilitate the activity through the work they do in the course.

"This is a course where the students get the opportunity to function as training interns on a variety of problems," said Dr. Keith Bernhard, a member of the campaign's steering committee. "The United Way has been a traditional project for the class for about six years."

The four class members have been busy updating and revising supportive materials used to orient and train the captains and volunteers. They also have organized and implemented the orientation and training sessions, revised and updated the introductory slide show and prepared packets which each volunteer received. This all had to be done in the last six weeks.

"The development of materials to be used in the campaign is one of the main objectives of the course. The fact sheet had to be almost completely rewritten for this year and the slide show was totally updated," said class member Rodney Cooper.

The rest of the literature used in the training and orientation sessions was rewritten and revised based on materials from past campaigns, he said.

Lawrence described the class as an invaluable experience for people with no prior experience in the mechanics of doing everything necessary to make a training session a success.

"Organizational and communication skills are needed to work within the team, and for planning and conducting informal and formal meetings. Our written communication skills are also constantly being developed," Lawrence said. "I've learned that good human resource skills help sometimes to talk with people and get things accomplished that seemed unlikely or impossible."

Class member Nanette Paday stressed the importance of being able to identify the needs of the participants, but even more importantly, being able to implement plans in order to meet their needs.

Most of the preparation has been completed, but more work lies ahead for the students. A compilation of all their efforts, including an evaluation of all the training sessions and recommendations for future sessions will be submitted to the United Way at the end of the semester, said class member Lynette Radigan.

The training is finished and the volunteers are aware of their roles in the campaign, Bernhard said. However, the success of the campaign is now up to everyone who can donate. The United Way is asking everyone to "Listen to your heart and give; you make the difference."

Groundwater workshop focus

Groundwater is a precious natural resource; one that demands extra precautions against pollutants.

With that in mind, two experts in groundwater resources and pollution control will conduct a two-day workshop in applied groundwater hydrology on Friday and Saturday (Oct. 16-17).

The workshop will begin at 1 p.m. Friday and will continue all day Saturday. All sessions will be in 270 Overman Hall. Material to be covered includes basic principles about the origin, nature and flow of groundwater as well as practical consideration of groundwater recovery, quality, monitoring and contamination control.

The scientists, both 1977 Bowling Green graduates, who will present the program are Lawrence Graves of Geraghty and Miller of Columbus, a firm that specializes in environmental problems, and David M. Neisen of I.E.P., Inc. of Columbus, a company of environmental scientists, planners and engineers.

"Groundwater hydrology has become a critically important area in recent years," said Dr. Jane L. Forsyth, geology and coordinator of the workshop. "With increased demands by communities for more and better quality water, there is a great need for specialists to deal with the evaluation of groundwater resources, decontaminating polluted groundwater and to give instructional workshops on these problems."

Anyone with an interest in the subject is welcome to attend but some knowledge of geology will be helpful. Forsyth advised. Cost is $15, $5 for students, and reservations can be made by contacting Forsyth at the department of geology. For further information, contact her at 372-2887.

Dr. Ralph Wolfe, English, and Ann Bowers, archival collections, examine some of the many photographs in Wolfe's collection of memorabilia on actress Jean Arthur. Last week, Wolfe donated the collection, which consists of still shots of various Arthur films and photos of various times in her career, to the Center for Archival Collections. He plans to continue adding to the collection. The donation is in conjunction with Arthur's birthday Oct. 17. A retrospective film series honoring her career runs through Dec. 4 in Gish Theater.

GLIPA expects 1,500 students

More than 1,500 high school students and teachers from Ohio, Michigan and Indiana are expected to attend the 35th annual fall journalism workshop Wednesday (Oct. 14).

Workshop sessions, which will be held in various campus locations, begin with registration at 8:15 a.m. in Lenhart Grand Ballroom of the University Union and adjourn at 3:15 p.m.

The nation's largest journalism workshop geared for high school publication staffs is sponsored jointly by the School of Mass Communication and the Great Lakes Interscholastic Press Association. GLIPA is a service organization designed to help students produce quality high school publications.

Attorney Mark Goodman, executive director of the Student Press Law Center in Washington, D.C., and newspaper columnist Don Wolfe of Toledo are among the featured workshop speakers.

Goodman will discuss the legal rights and responsibilities of high school and college journalists and their advisers. He also will describe his involvement with Hazelwood

School District vs. Kuhlmeier. The case, currently before the Supreme Court, deals with whether school officials should be allowed to censor student newspapers that are tied to a journalism class in the curriculum.

Wolfe, who is assistant managing editor of The Blade, will talk about various elements of writing newspaper columns.

In addition, participants can attend five classes from over 40 different sessions being offered in various campus buildings. Sessions will be scheduled throughout the day and will cover such topics as basic news writing, writing effective photo captions and basic layout and design.

Students also can compete for cash awards of $5, $10 and $25 in several categories of writing.

"We are looking forward to celebrating our 35th anniversary of sponsoring the program with GLIPA," noted workshop coordinator Linda Glomski, mass communications. "I think the workshop helps get students motivated to do their jobs as high school journalists."

Exchange applications are due

Applications for the National Faculty Exchange (NFE) for the 1988-89 academic year are due Nov. 1 in the Center for Academic Options.

The exchange allows full-time continuing faculty to work at one of over 100 member institutions across the nation and Canada, including colleges, universities, educational associations and federal agencies. Faculty retain a contractual relationship with Bowling Green while on exchange regarding salary, fringe benefits and retirement contributions. Rights to the faculty improvement leave program, fee waivers and accumulated time toward promotion continue uninterrupted while on exchange.

Exchanges are arranged from the national pool by the NFE central office after prime consideration has been given to the preferences and criteria of both the applicant and the potential host institutions. Placements will be negotiated in January 1988 for the 1988-89 academic year. A list of potential openings has been compiled and is available from the Center for Academic Options.

Faculty interested in NFE should contact Joni Reed, NFE coordinator, Center for Academic Options, 231 Administration, or call 372-8202 before the deadline.

Sampen to perform with orchestra

Saxophonist John Sampen, music, will be a featured soloist next week with the Toledo Symphony Orchestra.

Sampen, who has taught in the College of Musical Arts since 1977, will perform with the orchestra at 8 p.m. Friday (Oct. 16) and Saturday (Oct. 17) at the Peristyle of the Toledo Museum of Art.

Sampen will present the world premiere of "In Two Worlds" by internationally-known composer Morton Subotnick. The concerto for alto saxophone, wind controller, computer and orchestra, is considered a major contribution to saxophone literature. Created by Subotnick with a grant from the National Endowment of the Arts, "In Two Worlds" utilizes the full resources of the classical orchestra as well as the most recent developments in computer and sound manipulation.

"Part II," an 18-minute version of the original 38-minute composition, will be performed by Sampen with the Toledo Symphony, under the direction of Yuval Zaliouk.

In January Sampen will perform the entire concerto with the Electro-Acoustic Music Association in Cambridge and at Queen Elizabeth Hall in London, England.

He will perform the piece again in March with Neil Stulberg and the New Mexico Symphony Orchestra in Albuquerque.

Internationally recognized for his performance of contemporary music, Sampen has appeared throughout the United States and Europe. Last May he made a recording and concert tour of Belgium, Switzerland and Holland.

Kilmer joins team for TV series

A faculty member is serving on the development team for a new public television series.

Dr. Sally Kilmer, home economics, is the child development specialist advising creators of "Wee Wonders."

The show for four- to seven-year-olds is being produced by the National Science Teachers Association and Maryland Instructional Television with funding from the National Science Foundation. The National Science Teachers Association, the largest science education association in the world, is widely recognized for its leadership in science education.

A series of 15 30-minute programs devoted to physical science and mathematics is being created. The series is expected to debut in the fall of 1989.

The show, Kilmer said, will use familiar objects, such as rainbows and shadows, to teach fundamentals of science and mathematics in an entertaining way.

Kilmer is editor of several books on early education research. Also a consultant to Head Start, she has been a board member of the National Association for the Education of Young Children.

Kilmer is currently on leave from her teaching duties at the University.

Israel's politics to be discussed

There is nothing uncommon about religious intolerance in the Middle East: Christians fighting Muslims; Jews fighting Muslims; Shi'ite Muslims fighting Sunni Muslims. But Jews fighting Jews?

That is what is happening almost daily in Israel as an ultra-Orthodox minority, who envisions a country run by the strict dictates of religious law, clash with the secular majority who foresee Israel as a modern, western-style democracy, even if it means compromising some of those strict religious canons.

The issues surrounding this debate, which more than once have broken down into full-scale rioting in the streets of Jerusalem and other Israeli cities, will be discussed during a free public lecture Oct.

19.

Dr. Mark Tressler, a professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, will discuss "Israel: Politics of a Changing Society" at 7:30 p.m. in the Assembly Room of McFall Center.

The author of more than 75 journal and general audience magazine articles, he is also the author of six books on the Middle East and is currently completing a manuscript on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict.

The lecture is being sponsored by the University's department of political science, Pi Sigma Alpha political science honor society and the International Relations Organization.

Sherrill Gray, library and learning resources, puts together a display at Jerome Library in celebration of actress Lillian Gish's birthday on Wednesday (Oct. 14).

University celebrates

Lillian Gish has a birthday Oct. 14

A special showing of D.W. Griffith's World War I classic "Hearts of the World" is planned Tuesday (Oct. 13) at the Gish Film Theater.

The showing is in celebration of the birthday of Lillian Gish at the theater which commemorates the achievements of the Ohio actress and her sister Dorothy in the history of American film. The theater also commemorates the acting debut in the early 1900s of Lillian Gish in Risingsun, 20 miles from Bowling Green. Lillian Gish's latest film, "The Whales of August" is expected to be released this month.

"Hearts of the World," made in 1918, will be shown at 7 p.m. It is the story of a French village whose inhabitants have led quiet lives until peace is shattered by war.

With the cooperation of the British and French governments, Griffith shot much of the footage under actual battle conditions in France. The footage has been integrated so skillfully that it is hard to tell which scenes of fighting are genuine and which are simulated.

The motion picture has one of Griffith's strongest casts, led by Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Robert Harron, Kate Bruce, Noel Coward and Ben Alexander.

Film historian Anthony Slide, a member of the national Gish Film Theater advisory committee, will be on hand to introduce the motion picture. He is the author or editor of more than two dozen books and has written hundreds of book reviews and articles on the history of popular entertainment.

The preceding evening, at 7:30 p.m. Monday (Oct. 12), Slide will give an illustrated lecture on women film directors at the Gish Film Theater.

An independent writer, researcher and scholar, Slide is co-owner of Producers Library Service, the second largest independent stock footage library in the United States, which has more than six million feet of film on file. He has been a consultant on 24 episodes of the 20th Century-Fox/ABC series, "That's Hollywood" and was associate producer of the ABC-TV documentary, "The Dark Side of Hollywood."

In addition to these special events at the Gish Film Theater, there will be a display of memorabilia related to the careers of Lillian Gish and Anthony Slide at the Jerome Library. The portion of the display devoted to Lillian Gish's career will include items from her visits to Bowling Green. Several of Slide's many books about film will be shown in the portion devoted to his work.

The display is located in cases adjacent to and north of the circulation desk on the first floor of the library.

Constitution

from page 1

Endowment for the Humanities.

He will be joined at the conference by authorities in history, political science and law, including Dr. Paul L. Murphy, a history professor at the University of Minnesota; Dr. Harold M. Hyman, a professor of history at Rice University; Dr. Glen O. Robinson, a professor of law at the University of Virginia; Dr. Alan R. Jones, a professor of history at Grinnell College; Dr. Richard A. Epstein, a professor of law at the University of Chicago Law School; Dr. Tony Freyer, a professor of law and history at the University of Alabama; Dr. Harry N. Scheiber, a professor of history and law at the University of California, Berkeley; and Dr. Mary Cornelia Porter, a professor of political science at Northern Illinois University.

The 1987 conference will begin at 7:30 p.m. Oct. 22 with an introduction, followed by the keynote address and a reception at 9:30 p.m.

On Oct. 23 and 24, speakers will address the conference beginning at 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Milet Alumni Center.

For further information about the conference and accommodations and to register, contact Tilgner at 372-2536. Participants who pre-register will receive a packet of materials, including information about the topics to be addressed.

The project is being supported by the Bicentennial Program from the National Endowment for the Humanities, the Office of University Relations, the College of Arts and Sciences, and the Graduate College.

Datebook

Monday, Oct. 12

Photography Exhibit, selected watercolors and works from his "Visions of America" series, by Joel Rudinger, humanities at Firelands College Art Gallery, Firelands campus, through Oct. 30. Gallery hours are 10 a.m.-8 p.m. Monday through Thursday and 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Friday.

Lecture, "Early Women Film Directors," by Anthony Slide, film historian, 7:30 p.m., Gish Film Theater, Hanna Hall. Free.

Concert, performed by the Bowling Green Brass Quintet, 7:30 p.m., McBride Auditorium, Firelands Campus. Free.

Tuesday, Oct. 13

Brown Bag Lunch, with Dean Roger Bennett, College of Education and Allied Professions, noon-1 p.m., 444 Education Building. Faculty, staff and students invited.

Film, "Hearts of the World," 7 p.m., Gish Film Theater, Hanna Hall. Film introduction by Anthony Slide, Film historian. Free.

Progressive Student Organization Meeting, 8 p.m., United Christian Fellowship Center, 313 Thurstin. Everyone welcome.

Planetarium Show, "It's About Time," 8 p.m., Planetarium, Physical Sciences Building. $1 donation suggested.

Wednesday, Oct. 14

Racial Justice Forum, speaker, President Paul Olscamp, 1:30 p.m., 411 Student Services.

Biology Seminar, "Metabolic Research in Clinical Nutrition," by Dr. Jeff Merritt, University of Medicine and Dentistry of New Jersey, 3:30 p.m., 112 Life Science Building. Free.

Forum, "The Gulf: Its Global and Strategic Significance," presented by Marshall W. Wiley, former U.S. Ambassador to Oman and Imam Abdelmoneim Khattab, Islamic Center of Greater Ohio, 7:30 p.m., 112 Life Science Building.

Peace Education Series, "The Persian Gulf," 7:30 p.m., United Christian Fellowship Center, 313 Thurstin. Free.

Theater, "Tom Jones," 8 p.m., Joe E. Brown Theater, University Hall. Tickets are $1.50.

Concert, performed by Venti da Camera, faculty woodwind quintet, 8 p.m., Bryan Recital Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center. Free.

Thursday, Oct. 15

Conference, "Sensory Loss in the Elderly: Hearing and Vision," 9 a.m.-12:15 p.m., Ice Arena Lounge. For more information call 372-8181. $10 registration fee required.

Keyboard Televideo Conference, "Is Independent Teaching a Viable Career?," 11:30 a.m.-4 p.m., Bryan Recital Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center. For more details call 372-2181. Registration fee required.

Feminist Forum, "Foregrounding Gender in the English Renaissance," by Dymphna Callaghan-Messer, interim director of the Women's Studies Program, 12:30-1:30 p.m., 222 Education Building.

Eleazer Wood Lecture in Military History, "The Eighth Army is Yours, Matt," Brigadier General Roy K. Flint, dean of the Academic Board of the United States Military Academy, West Point, 4:30 p.m., 220 Math-Science Building.

Lecture, "Attention Deficits and Hyperactivity in Children," by Dr. Russell Barkley, director of psychology, University of Massachusetts Medical Center, 7:30 p.m., 210 Math Science Building. Free.

UAO Lenhart Classics Film Series, "West Side Story," 8 p.m., 210 Math Science Building. Free.

Theater, "Tom Jones," 8 p.m., Joe E. Brown Theater, University Hall. Tickets are $1.50.

Concert, performed by the Student Jazz Combos, 8 p.m., Bryan Recital Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center. Free.

Friday, Oct. 16

Women's Volleyball, BGSU vs. Western Michigan, 7 p.m., Anderson Arena.

Jean Arthur Film Series, "History is Made at Night," 7 p.m., Gish Film Theater, Hanna Hall. Free.

Hockey, BGSU vs. Toronto, 7:30 p.m., Ice Arena.

UAO Weekend Movie, "Mask," 7:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m., 210 Math Science Building. Cost: $1.50 with I.D.

Planetarium Show, "It's About Time," 8 p.m., Planetarium, Physical Sciences Building. $1 donation suggested.

Theater, "Tom Jones," 8 p.m., Joe E. Brown Theater, University Hall. Tickets are $1.50.

Jean Arthur Film Series, "You Can't Take it with You," 8:45 p.m., Gish Film Theater, Hanna Hall. Free.

UAO Weekend Movie, "Airplane," midnight, 210 Math Science Building. Cost: $1.50 with I.D.

Saturday, Oct. 17

Football, BGSU vs. Toledo, 1:30 p.m., Doyt Perry Field.

Women's Volleyball, BGSU vs. Ohio University, 4 p.m., Anderson Arena.

Hockey, BGSU vs. Toronto, 7:30 p.m., Ice Arena.

UAO Weekend Movie, "Mask," 7:30 p.m. and 9:45 p.m., 210 Math Science Building. Cost: $1.50 with I.D.

Theater, "Tom Jones," 8 p.m., Joe E. Brown Theater, University Hall. Tickets are $1.50.

UAO Weekend Movie, "Airplane," midnight, 210 Math Science Building. Cost: $1.50 with I.D.

Sunday, Oct. 18

Concert, performed by the Fall Wind Ensemble and Concert Band, 3 p.m., Kobacker Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center. Free.

Planetarium Show, "It's About Time," 7:30 p.m., Planetarium, Physical Sciences Building. $1 donation suggested. Stargazing follows weather permitting.

Concert, performed by the Bowling Green String Quartet, 8 p.m., Kobacker Hall, Moore Musical Arts Center. Free.

Monday, Oct. 19

Forum, "Israel: Politics of a Changing Society," by Dr. Mark A. Tressler, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee, 7:30 p.m., Assembly Room, McFall Center.

Lecture, "Democracy in America," by Richard Reeves, author, historian and syndicated columnist, 8 p.m., East Lounge, Firelands campus. Free.

Novelist to read

Novelist Vance Bourjaily will read from his works Friday (Oct. 16).

Bourjaily, who teaches at Louisiana State University, will give a reading at 12:30 p.m. in 105 Jerome Library, according to Barbara McMillen, English and director of the visiting writers series.

Sponsored by the Creative Writing Program, the free event is open to the public.

Bourjaily's recent novel, "The Great Fake Book," published earlier this year by Weidenfeld & Nicolson, has been called "a narrative and stylistic 'tour de force.'"

The author of nonfiction, articles and short stories, his works also include "The End of My Life," "The Hound of Earth," "The Violated," "The Man Who Knew Kennedy" and "Brill Among the Ruins."

Other writers scheduled to give readings as part of the series this year include poets Lucien Stryk and Charles Fort and novelist and poet Paul Auster.

Award recognizes effort

Racial understanding promoted

The College of Education and Allied Professions has initiated an annual awards program to recognize efforts by individuals and groups to promote racial understanding.

According to Dean Roger V. Bennett, the college's "Awards for Promoting Racial Understanding" are designed to recognize organized programs and individual activities in schools and communities, as well as on campus.

"For the past three years, our college has been involved in some intensive recruiting efforts to attract minority students and faculty," he said. "We've found that, to be successful, we need the help and cooperation of a lot of people in the schools and the community. We also realize that our goal is not just to increase the number of minority students and faculty at Bowling Green. It is to improve racial understanding among all people.

"While this awards program will recognize the efforts of a few, we hope it also will provide many others with ideas and encouragement to engage in similar activities," he said.

Awards will be given in six categories: 1) school or school district, 2) individual teacher, 3) individual counselor, 4) school administrator, 5) community group or agency, and 6) Bowling Green State University organization or individual.

The awards will be presented on Oct. 23 at a dinner meeting at the Holiday Inn at Bowling Green. The meeting is the highlight of a weekend conference for school guidance counselors sponsored by Bowling Green's College of Education and Allied Professions. The theme of the conference is "Preparing Minority Students for Higher Education."

In Brief

Richard Reeves to speak at Firelands Oct. 19

Author and syndicated columnist Richard Reeves will speak at Firelands College Oct. 19.

Open period set

The eligibility provision of the University Health Care Benefit program allows for an annual open enrollment period each October. Any employee who previously waived family coverage may enroll his or her eligible dependents this month. Family coverage enrolled during the October open period will become effective Dec. 1.

Employees wishing to enroll for family coverage during the October open period should go to the University Group Insurance Office, 10 Shatzel Hall, or call 372-2112.

Lecture planned

"The Gulf: Its Global and Strategic Significance" is the topic of a free public lecture to be presented by the former U.S. ambassador to Oman and a local Islamic religious leader on Wednesday (Oct. 14).

Sponsored by the political science department, Pi Sigma Alpha political science honor society and the International Relations Organization, the lecture will begin at 7:30 p.m. in 112 Life Sciences Building on the campus.

The featured speakers will be Marshall W. Wiley, who served as the ambassador to Oman during the Carter administration, and Imam Abdelmoneim Khattab of the Islamic Center of Greater Toledo.

Teleconference set

"Tax Reform One Year Later: Year End Tax Planning" is the subject of a live, national teleconference that WBGU-TV will assist in presenting from 1-4 p.m. Wednesday (Oct. 14).

The event will be held in the WBGU-TV studio and will present experts from the international accounting firm of Peat Marwick, discussing and answering questions about year-end tax planning under the 1986 Tax Reform Act. University faculty and staff are invited to attend at no charge. Reservations can be made by calling 372-2700.

Monitor

The Monitor is published weekly by the Office of Public Relations for faculty and staff of Bowling Green State University. The deadline to submit material for the Oct. 19 issue is 5 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 13.

Editor: Melissa Peper Firestone
Photographer: William Brown
Contributors: Clifton P. Boutelle, Teri Sharp, Gardner A. McLean Jr., Linda Swaisgood, Beth Sondgeroth and Kari Hesburn.

"Commentaries" and other notices should be sent to:

Monitor
Office of Public Relations 806
Administration Bldg.
Bowling Green, Oh. 43403

Staff added

New classified employees have joined the University staff. They are: Loretta Bradley, cashier, food operations; Kathie Carson, food service worker, food operations; and Douglas Scott, custodial worker, plant operations and maintenance.

Note deadline

The deadline for submitting applications for the 1988-89 faculty exchange with the Xian Foreign Languages Institute in China is Oct. 30.

A formal application for the exchange requires only a brief letter and a vita. However, general expressions of interest and questions are welcome. For more information, contact Dr. Lester Barber, English and coordinator of the program, at 372-7543.

Order regalia

Faculty and staff are reminded to place their orders for December commencement regalia at the University Bookstore as soon as possible. Orders may be phoned to Marge Houchins at 372-2851. A $5 late charge will be added to orders placed after Dec. 4.

Faculty wishing to purchase regalia for the December commencement must place orders by Thursday (Oct. 15). A special manufacturer's discount will be offered through Oct. 30. Contact Houchins to place an order for purchase.

For Sale

The Philosophy Documentation Center has for sale a Canon NP-120 copier in good condition for $295 or reasonable offer. For more information, contact Cindy Richards at 372-2419.

Classified Employment Opportunities

The following classified staff positions are available: (* indicates that an employee from within the department is bidding and being considered for the position.)

New Vacancies

Posting expiration date for employees to apply: 4 p.m., Friday, Oct. 16.

10-16 Clerical Specialist
Pay range 25
University Placement Services

10-9-16* Library Assistant
Pay range 4
Library and Learning Resources
(Duplicating and Processing)
Permanent part-time

Faculty/staff positions

The following faculty positions are available:

Chemistry: Assistant professor (probationary) for grant-funded Academic Challenge Program. Contact Michael AJ Rodgers (2-2034). Deadline: Dec. 1.

Communication Disorders: Assistant professor. Contact Herbert J. Greenberg (2-2518). Deadline: March 15.

English: Assistant professor (anticipated). Contact Lester E. Barber (2-2576). Deadline: Nov. 16.

Finance and Insurance: Assistant/associate professor of finance and/or insurance. Contact Stephen E. Skomp (2-2520). Deadline: Dec. 1.

Interpersonal and Public Communication: Assistant professor. Contact Raymond K. Tucker (2-7168). Deadline: Dec. 1.